01 Who You're Meeting

Robin Washington — President, Chief Financial and Operating Officer, Salesforce.

In role: President and COFO; a Salesforce board director since 2013 and Lead Independent Director from 2022 to 2025

Today: Owns an unusually broad remit — business strategy and operations, global finance, employee success, global strategic customers and partners, marketing, communications, and real estate and workplace services — with profitable growth and operational excellence as the mandate.

A finance leader who moved from the board into the executive seat, which is rare and consequential. She was Chief Accounting Officer at PeopleSoft, CFO of Hyperion Solutions from 2006 to 2007, and then EVP and CFO of Gilead Sciences from 2008 to 2019 — more than a decade running finance at a major biopharmaceutical company. She joined the Salesforce board in 2013 and served as Lead Independent Director from 2022 to 2025, through the activist-investor period and the profitable-growth pivot, before taking the combined President and COFO role.

Career: President & Chief Operating and Financial Officer, Salesforce; Lead Independent Director, Salesforce; Member of the Board of Directors, Salesforce; Executive Vice President & Chief Financial Officer, Gilead Sciences

Education: BBA, University of Michigan Ross School of Business

The company: Agentforce ARR reached $800M in FY2026, up 169%, and passed $1.2B by Q1 FY2027 — up 205%. Combined Agentforce and Data 360 ARR exceeds $2.9B. Salesforce has started reporting Agentic Work Units, a measure of tasks completed rather than licences sold.

What they sell: The CRM suite — Sales, Service, Marketing and industry clouds — plus Data 360 (formerly Data Cloud), Tableau, Slack, MuleSoft and Informatica, all under Agentforce 360 as the agentic layer. Informatica was acquired in November 2025.

02 Where The Company Sits

The metric to pay attention to is Agentic Work Units — 2.4 billion delivered to date, growing 57% quarter over quarter, defined as moments where AI did work rather than just reasoned about it. Whatever you think of the framing, it is the first serious attempt by a major vendor to price and report AI on output rather than seats, and it is the direction SAP has also signalled. For a portfolio programme that matters because seat-based AI budgeting breaks down quickly.

03 Talking Points

- Finance, operations, and strategic customers and partners all sit with her — the single most useful counterpart for a portfolio-scale Salesforce agreement.
- Eleven years as CFO of Gilead means she has run finance in a regulated, capital-intensive industry, not just software.
- She came from the board and owns the profitable-growth mandate. Expect discipline on discounting and rigour on commitments.

What to pressure-test about the company:

- Total revenue growth of 10% is modest for a company positioning itself at the centre of an AI transformation
- Q1 FY2027 backlog fell short of expectations and full-year guidance slightly missed — the agentic numbers are not yet moving the aggregate
- Agentforce and Data 360's $2.9B combined ARR includes $1.1B from the acquired Informatica business, so organic agentic ARR is smaller than the headline

04 GIP Context

GIP: No publicly disclosed GIP relationship. Salesforce is likely present at PortCos with significant customer-facing operations. Note that Informatica — now a Salesforce company — is data management tooling that may already be deployed independently in some portfolio companies.

BlackRock: No publicly disclosed operating relationship; standard index holdings of CRM only.

Others at Salesforce: Marc Benioff (Chair & Chief Executive Officer)
