01 Who You're Meeting

Christophe De Vusser — Worldwide Managing Partner, CEO & Chairman of the Board, Bain & Company.

In role: Took office 1 July 2024, having been elected in January 2024

Today: Runs Bain's global strategy and operations, including Modernize Bain — the firm's own AI transformation programme aimed at client impact and at preserving its culture through the shift.

The single most directly relevant person in this contact list to an infrastructure private-equity firm. He spent his Bain career in private equity: he led the firm's EMEA Private Equity practice and is recognised internally as one of its foremost experts in deal advisory and value creation for portfolio companies owned by financial investors — which is to say, exactly the work GIP commissions.

Career: Worldwide Managing Partner, CEO & Chairman of the Board, Bain & Company; Head of EMEA Private Equity practice; Board of Directors, Bain & Company; Managing Partner, Brussels office, Bain & Company; Consultant to Partner, private equity and consumer products, Bain & Company

Education: Civil Engineering, University of Ghent; Business Communications, University of Ghent

The company: One of the three strategy firms, and the one with the deepest private equity franchise — which makes it the most likely of the MBB set to already be inside GIP's diligence workflows. It is also the least transparent: it stopped publishing revenue and uses at least two inconsistent headcount methodologies.

What they sell: Strategy, performance improvement and organisational consulting, with an unusually large private equity practice covering commercial due diligence, value creation planning and portfolio operations.

02 Where The Company Sits

Bain's PE practice is the relevant asset for an infrastructure fund — commercial due diligence and post-close value creation are its home ground, and it is likely already engaged somewhere in the deal pipeline. On AI specifically the public record is thin next to BCG, which disclosed 25% of revenue from AI work, and McKinsey, reported at around 40% from AI and technology advisory. Bain has published no comparable figure.

03 Talking Points

- He speaks private equity natively — value creation planning and commercial diligence are his own practice area, not a firm capability he is relaying.
- Modernize Bain gives him a first-person view of AI's effect on a people business; a credible conversation about what actually changed rather than what was announced.
- Bain publishes no revenue and no AI figure while BCG and McKinsey both do. Worth asking him directly rather than working around it.

What to pressure-test about the company:

- Discloses less than any peer in this set: no current revenue figure, and two inconsistent headcount methodologies
- Widely-cited figures are unreliable — the $14B on Wikipedia traces to a source that says $7.5B
- Headcount fell 5% in 2024 on a hiring freeze and elevated turnover, and 2025 barely recovered

04 GIP Context

GIP: No publicly disclosed GIP relationship. Given Bain's private equity franchise, check internally before assuming a clean slate — an existing commercial diligence relationship at deal level is plausible and would not be public.

BlackRock: None publicly disclosed.
