01 Who You're Meeting

Bill Thomas — Global Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, KPMG International, KPMG.

In role: Chairman of KPMG International from 1 October 2017; re-elected in 2020 for a second term

Today: Leads the global KPMG network across roughly 143–146 countries, with the Collective Strategy investment programme and the network's technology alliances as his signature work.

A Canadian chartered accountant who came up through the firm's Canadian practice rather than a global centre. He was Chief Executive Officer and Senior Partner of KPMG in Canada from 2009 to 2016, then Chairman of KPMG's Americas region from 2014 to 2017, and has sat on KPMG's Global Board and Executive Committee since 2009. As global chairman he launched a $5 billion digital strategy and investment plan with Microsoft in 2019 and expanded the network's technology alliances, and he steered the network through COVID-19 and through accounting scandals connected to the Carillion collapse in the UK and the Gupta...

Career: Global Chairman & Chief Executive Officer, KPMG International; Chairman, Americas region, KPMG; Chief Executive Officer & Senior Partner, KPMG in Canada; Member, Global Board and Executive Committee, KPMG International

Education: BSc Chemistry, University of British Columbia; Chartered Accountant (1992), Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia

The company: The smallest Big Four network at $39.8B, growing 5.1% in local currency — faster than Deloitte's 4.8% and EY's 4.0%, but from a materially smaller base. Growth is concentrated in tax, legal and audit; advisory, where AI work sits, grew only 2.9%.

What they sell: Audit, tax and legal, and advisory services through member firms. Investment runs under the Collective Strategy, a three-year $4.2B plan announced in 2023 covering technology, talent and sustainability.

02 Where The Company Sits

The service-line split is the most useful thing on this page. Tax and Legal grew 7.5% and Audit 6.0%, while Advisory — the consulting arm that would deliver AI work — grew 2.9%. That is the opposite shape to Accenture or BCG and it means the headline growth rate overstates KPMG's momentum in the areas relevant to a portfolio AI programme.

03 Talking Points

- An auditor by formation — governance, independence and risk are where he engages most naturally.
- He built KPMG's alliance model, so a conversation about which technology partner KPMG would deliver on is within his gift.
- His second term was reported as running to 2026. Confirm whether he is still in post before assuming continuity on anything long-dated.

What to pressure-test about the company:

- Advisory grew only 2.9% — the service line that would deliver AI transformation work is the slowest-growing
- Smallest of the Big Four at $39.8B, against Deloitte's $70.5B and EY's $53.2B
- Headcount grew just 1.8%, and reporting on the regional breakdown indicates the Americas and Asia Pacific headcount actually shrank

04 GIP Context

GIP: No publicly disclosed GIP relationship. As with the other Big Four, check for an existing audit relationship at fund or PortCo level before scoping consulting work — independence rules constrain what can follow.

BlackRock: No publicly disclosed operating relationship.
